agricultural region and far-famed as a manufacturing town. The water power at this point is one of the very best, there being a water fall of 73 feet from the stone dam at the bridge between Anson and Madison to a point one mile below. The last twenty years have brought to Madison and her sister town, Anson, the greater part of her development and prosperity.

The date of the settlement of Madison by the white man is placed, by those who are informed regarding the town's past, at some time between the dates of 1773 and 1775.

Who the first white man was to set foot on the soil of Madison we have no way of knowing. It may have been the far-famed Druillette of whom we have previously made mention. Or, more indefinitely, it may have been some adventurous hunter who had been willing to run the risks incident to a trip along the river at the time when the territory belonged undisputedly to the savage. But the first recorded arrival of which we know was that of Father Druillette, who passed through this town on his way down the river, in 1646, to establish his mission near Cushnoc (Augusta). Later he made several trips up and down the river as he accompanied his dusky converts on their fishing and hunting trips along the water course. The next recorded arrival is Father Rasle who came, as we have heretofore noted, in 1695, more than forty years after the departure of Father Druillette. Rasle may be properly termed the first white settler of Madison, as he settled here with his redskins and lived here till his death, which occurred, as hereinbefore noted, in 1724. This man who travelled among forests over the grounds where our modern residences now sit, where our woolen mills send forth their steady hum, and where our paper mills convert the timber of the forest into the huge rolls that are soon to revolve on the intricate printing press and receive the impression of the metal type, and carry forth to the millions the products of intelect which he strove to teach by word of mouth, was not an Englishman, but a native of France, and highly educated in her best schools of that day.

He was likewise the builder of the first church edifice in this town. We learn from Rasle's letters written to a nephew that the chapel at the Indian village of Norridgewock was wonderfully beautified for the time and place. It was furnished with all the fine plate and other equipment that were found in that day in European churches. The king of France was the donor of certain parts of the equipment.

Madison should be famous, even had she no other cause, for being the resting place of the bones of this man known over two continents.

From the time of Rasle fifty years and more rolled by without a recorded settlement in this town. The town next below, Norridgewock, was first settled in 1772, and Madison was penetrated not long after. The southwest corner of the town was the first portion to be cleared by white settlers, and so far as can be learned, and we have searched dilligently, a Mr. Sylvanus Sawyer who settled at Old Point, was the first settler. This was the first permanent re-establishment of the settlement at this place. Of Mr. Sawyer we know but little. He had a son, Luke Sawyer, who afterward settled in Starks and built up the mills at that place and gave it the name, Sawyer's Mills, by which it was and is known to many. We learn from a present resident of Madison, Mr. Joshua Perkins, that this Luke Sawyer was one of those who assisted General Benedict

Arnold and his army in getting their supplies and equipments around the falls at this place. Mr. Sawyer, we are told also accompanied the army to the carrying place above Bingham, acting as a boatsman. This expedition, fearful and perilous undertaking that it was, has many interesting features. It was one of the most courageous efforts in the history of the Continental army involving not only the dangers of the battlefield, but what were worse the perils of severe cold and starvation. It is interesting to note that this expedition was commanded by a man who was to have the opportunity of being the most heartily praised and the most bitterly condemned of any of the early patriots. While Arnold's conduct admits of no explanation we cannot, however, forget that he was in many respects a victim of circumstances. He became, instead of the dashing, popular officer he was at the time he passed through Madison, in October, 1775, a broken man, the most despised man in England or America.

It is also interesting to note that Aaron Burr, afterwards Vice President of the United States and later lacking but one vote to make him President, was in this detachment when it went through this town. He was serving as a lieutenant, and went through to Quebec, where he carried General Montgomery off the field when he had been wounded. General Montgomery was a large man of nearly two hundred pounds while "Little Burr," as he was familiarly called, weighed not far from one hundred pounds.

Mr. Sawyer, the first settler above referred to, had also a son, Levi, who after wards removed to New York; a son Ephraim; and also a son, Sylvanus, who settled in this town about one mile from the village.

Who the other settlers directly after Mr. Sawyer were we are unable to state definitely, but we learn that the settlement was made rapidly after the first years of the Revolutionary war were over.

Deacon Benjamin Weston was one of those who soon followed Mr. Sawyer at an early date. He came to this town in 1786 and settled on the Theodore Weston farm about a mile and a half above the village on the east side of the river. The place is now well known to all citizens of this section of the valley. Deacon Weston, the subject of this portion of our sketch, was born in Concord and first came to the District of Maine in 1771. He was accompanied by a party who soon settled near Skowhegan falls in what is now Canaan. Mrs. Weston came here in 1772, being the first white woman to settle in Somerset county. Mr. Weston removed to this town, as above noted, in 1786. He reared a large family, all of whom have been a credit to this hardy, thrifty settler. The children were the following: Stephen, born in 1789; Benjamin, 1790; Nathan, 1796; William, 1810. The daughters were as follows: Ann, born in 1792; Fannie, 1795; Betsey, 1798; Mary, 1800; Electa, 1802; Eunice, 1804; Hannah, 1808.

Mr. Weston was a valuable citizen and will be long remembered. He was in charge of the first ferry, traces of which may be seen at this late day near his residence, and over which all the goods consumed in the region to the north of this place were transported. Mr. Weston, we are told, never would take his fee from people going to or from church, from ministers of the gospel and from funeral processions.

Other settlers of this town to come at about this time were John Ellis, who settled an the Skowhegan road as it is laid out at this time; James Savage, Silas Danforth and Jonathan Eames settled in the very early years and not far from the time that Mr. West came here, along the river farther up toward North Anson. James Savage cleared up the intervale farm now owned in separate parts by Hiram Moore and Frank Burns.

Silas Danforth settled on the farm still known as the "Danforth" place, near Mr. Savage's. Jonathan Eames settled where James H. Welch now lives. Mr. Savage, Mr. Danforth and Mr. Eames married sisters, presumably of the Mr. Young who settled near the above mentioned three, at about this time. His place is now occupied by Hannibal Danforth.

Another to settle along the river about this time was Goff Moore, who came from Norridgewock where he had temporarily located, and took up the farm where Eugene Burns now lives.

In the northwest portion of the town John Burns, David Danforth and David Young settled at a very early date, perhaps several years earlier than the date of Mr. Weston's arrival. Some have suggested to the writer that they came here as soon as 1776 or 1777. We are unable to state the time.

John B. Moore was a resident of this town not far from the beginning of the last century but removed in a few years to Moose River.

Samuel Burns, who married Ann, daughter of Deacon Weston, settled in this town at a comparatively early date. He lived on the Benjamin Adams place.

In the village there were for many years time only a few residents. Among the very first to settle here were Benjamin Ellis, Nathan Houghton, a Mr. Downs and a Mr. Getchell. Mr. Houghton was one of the first men of the town all his many useful years. He had sons Nathan, Jr., Gerry, Seth, Zalmon and Alvin. Mr. Houghton was the builder of mills at this point and was the contractor of the bridge when first built.

East Madison.

The part of Madison lying around the lake in the east part of the town was not settled as early as the portion along the river. A village sprang up around the outlet of Wesserrunsett Lake, as Hayden Lake was known in the early days, and has been known as East Madison. The first settler here was Elisha Lincoln, grandfather of Laban E. Lincoln, a present resident. He came here in 1802, from Bedford, New Hampshire, with a pair of oxen, by way of Skowhegan. Mr. Lincoln built the first saw mill and first grist mill at this point, near the outlet of Hayden Lake. The dam was in practically the same place as the dam of the woolen mill today. He bought, of Peter Sanborn, three hundred and fifty acres of land on the east side of the lake, paying for the same the sum of $1200. The date the deed bears is 1804. This was when Maine was a part of Massachusetts, and Somerset was included within the bounds of Kennebec. This portion of the territory was called in this deed Barnard's town.

Other settlers soon followed Mr. Lincoln. Daniel Reed came here soon after and located on the farm where his grandson, Eben Reed now lives. He came from Abbington, Mass. Gersham Harvell was one to come about this time, from New Hampshire, and located on the farm where his grandson, Gersham Harvell, now lives Joseph Jenkins came not long after and took up the farm where Charles and Joseph Thompson now live. He was also from New Hampshire. Mr. Hobart, afterwards a citizen of Madison, settled about this time in Solon. His native place was Pepperell, N. H. He had the honor of being a Revolutionary soldier. Robert Morrison was another of the early ones in this part of the town. He came from Farmington and ran the grist mill at this place for many years. Robert Dean, another Revolutionary soldier and the father of twenty-four children, settled not long after Mr. Lincoln came here. Jedediah Hayden, who settled on the west side of the lake, was also an early comer. He had a son William who was also reckoned with the early settlers. Mr. Hayden settled on the farm now owned by David Rowell.

CHAPTER III.

Military Matters

General Survey—The War of the Rebellion—List of Men from Madison.

The military history of the towns of Madison and Anson is a source of just pride. The deeds of bravery performed by men from these towns is only known in part, but the loyalty they exhibited in going to the field of combat to defend the principles of civil liberty cannot be obscured by any lapse of time. We of today who know of the scenes of war only as we hear them discussed from the lips of others little realize the nature of the battlefield and its accompanying conditions. We little realize the sacrifice that the soldier made as he left the scenes of home and business activity, but we can never, as loyal citizens, ourselves fail to respect and admire the men who left all and went forth in answer to the country's call for aid.

These towns were settled about the time of the opening of the great Revolution by which America severed the cords which bound us to Great Britain. Several of her citizens either saw service in the Continental army before coming here, or enlisted after having settled at this point. However the list is so incomplete we attempt no enumeration of names. After the settlers had made a beginning here in the wilderness, as it was at that time, there was almost no opportunity for them to leave their homes, as any continued absence meant starvation for the families left behind.

When the War of 1812 came the stand taken by New England was of such a nature that the District of Maine saw but little active service. The war was very unpopular in New England. The Federalists were in power here, and were bitterly hostile to the whole policy of the Central government. Though the people as a whole lacked no degree of patriotism the party in power in these states confined its action to the defence of the coast. However there were many New England men in the service of the United States in their individual capacity.

From this time on there was but little trouble of a national character which concerned this portion of the country to any considerable extent till the breaking out of the Civil War. Then came the supreme test of the Republican Government which we had been accustomed to call invincible. It was the severest test to which any government was ever put and stood the test successfully. It was the internal nature of the struggle that made it severe. Nothing but the greatest effort on the part of all loyal citizens could have kept the country intact.

It was four years of uncertainty from the opening gun of the war at Fort Sumpter till the surrender at Appomattox. When the word flashed across the country that peace had come there was not a hamlet north or south, east or west, but what responded to the thrill of joy.

In this contest these two towns met their responsibility loyally. We have thought it well to give herewith a list of the names of men from the town of Madison and Anson Lower Village, and corrected as carefully as circumstances will permit, we give it below:

C. D. Morrill, M. S. Perkins, S. Watson, G. Beal, H. G. Fuller, J. W. McKenney, A. R. Jones, A. H West, Cyrus Rogers, George F Newell, G. C Rounds, E. D. S. York, H. H. Steward, Alonzo Smith, N. H. CHAPTER IV.

Manufacturing Account.

Early Manufacturing—Mills and their Location—Recent Development—Woolen Mills—Paper Mills—Miscellaneous.

Twenty years seems but a short time as one glances backward over a period of this length, but much may be accomplished in that time. True this is in the case of the development of manufacturing in the town of Madison. Twenty years ago Madison had nothing but a few miscellaneous industries which were of little importance. They were confined to the local saw mills, grist mills, and a sash and blind factory of small size. Today she is one of the leading towns of the State in amount and importance of her output of manufactured goods. Hundreds of people find employment in her factories, scores of merchants are enabled to invest their money with hope of sufficient business to bring good returns. Hotels flourish, residences and fine business blocks are built, and the town is well on the road to rank with the cities of the State.

EARLY MILLS IN MADISON.

The first grist mill built in the village of Madison was built by one William Adams. It was located on Jones' Brook not far from the new Pine Street Bridge. It was built not far from 1800.

The next one was built on the island by Oriah Tinkham. Its date we cannot give with certainty, but it is said to have been in operation as early as 1825. It was owned by Messrs. Spaulding, Viles and Heald.

About the time that Mr. Adams built his grist mill on Jones' Brook, Mr. Benjamin Ellis erected a saw mill, about 1800, on this same stream. It was located a little higher up the stream. The mill was carried away in 1810 at the time of a freshet. Another mill was soon built by Nathan Houghton on the site of the mill later owned by Zalmon Houghton. It is still in operation.

Near the old bridge, some time after the dam was built, Nathan Houghton built a saw mill, and in this mill some of the timbers used in the old Toll Bridge were sawed. The greater part of the sawed timber used in the construction of the Patterson toll bridge was sawed in the mill at this point. This mill passed from the hands of Mr. Houghton to Cyrus Fletcher, then the following in order: Heald, Spaulding & Co., B. T. Dinsmore, Nathan Wood, P. Fletcher & Son, John & Abram McKenney, Hackett & Town, T. H. & B. P. J. Weston, and finally the Great Northern Paper Company.

The sash and blind factory was built on the island at a very early date. In the great freshet of 1832 this structure was carried away. It was rebuilt in the summer of the same year by J. S. Hardy and Nathan Wood. Hardy bought out Wood in 1859. The mill was burned in 1862. It was rebuilt on a different site by Mr. Hardy, who later sold a half interest to Mr. L. F. Edwards, and the other part to T. H. & B. P. J. Weston. These parties soon converted it into a paint shop. It later went into the hands of the Great Northern Paper Company.

On the site of Blackwell Block one Alfred Twombley owned and operated a tannery in the early years. It was finally abandoned and torn down.

The old starch factory was built by Mr. Strickland, and operated many years. It has since been torn down. It was afterwards run by Nathan Wood, B. T. Dinsmore, and was also owned by T. H. Weston.

On the Anson side of the Kennebec, below the end of the dam, a grist mill was erected and operated, about 1836, by Elisha Bennett. We are told that the building is still in use on this side of the river. The old channel and other marks of the site are discernible even at this day.

RECENT DEVELOPMENT.

As we have previously mentioned, the real development in the manufacturing history of the town of Madison came with the ushering in of the decade of the 80's. This was the time when the Westons began the agitation of the matter of building a woolen mill at this village. At first the project met with but little success, but by means of a large amount of hard work Mr. Weston succeeded in carrying out the project. The Madison Woolen Company was organized in 1881 with a capital of $100,000.

Ground was broken on the 14th of April, 1881, and the mill was then hurried to completion. After about four years of successful operation of the first mill, which we should say was the present wooden structure of the Madison mill, a project was launched to erect another mill, or an addition to the one already in operation. On May 14, 1885, the stockholders of the Madison Woolen Company met in New York, at the office of J. R. Libby & Co., and voted to increase the capital stock $100,000 for the building and equipment of a new mill. The building committee consisted of the following: T. H. and B. P. J. Weston; the committee on machinery were A. P. Benjamin and F. J. Goodspeed. Norton & Purinton were the contractors for the stone and brick work and S. M. Coombs was the architect. The bricks were made at Weston's brick-yard in this village.

The mill was dedicated March 3, 1886. Some particulars may be of interest. The length of the mill was 163 feet; breadth, 58 feet; and was four stories high, with a flat gravelled roof. The mill contains 76 windows, 1,400,000 bricks, 1130 yards of stone, 1060 casks of cement, 13½ tons of wrought iron and cast iron, and 3 tons of nails.

The machinery of the picker-room was started on February 4, 1886. A few looms were started in March of that year.

In connection with this project there were sixteen tenement houses completed.

The Indian Spring Woolen Company was organized in 1887, on July 6th. It was under the management of the H. J. Libby Co. Its capital stock was $100,000. The first officers were T. H. Weston, president; A. P. Benjamin, vice president; J. B. Libby, treasurer.

The contractors for the brick and stone work were Johnson & Johnson. The dimensions of the mill were as follows: Length, 136 feet; width, 56 feet; four stories high in front and five in back. The mill was completed in the same year of its beginning, December 3, 1887. In its construction there were used 1,186,855 bricks.

These two mills have been a source of great prosperity to this town. No one can estimate the amount of labor that was necessary to get the project started. It required many months of toil, as the opposition was strong. The mill that was nicknamed "Weston's Folly" has, however, since become one of Madison's bulwarks of prosperity.

In 1888, D. M. Dickinson of Michigan and I. M. Weston of the same state and a native of the State of Maine, together with other capitalists, bought the patent rights, for the United States and Canada, of reducing wood to pulp by a German process of acid treatment. They sold this right under royalty to one mill in Canada and two in the United States. The original purchasers were bought out by other capitalists, among whom were several members of President Cleveland's cabinet, viz: William C. Whitney and Daniel S. Lamont. Senator Payne was also a large owner. The corporation was known as the Manufacturing Investment Company, and was organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey. After considerable discussion, Madison was selected as the place for the building of the Eastern plant. I. M. Weston loyally supported Madison's interest in this matter and all Madison people owe Mr. Weston a debt of gratitude for his instrumentality in securing for her this enormous industry.

A long time was used in clearing up the land titles of the property around Norridgewock Falls, here at Madison. Two able lawyers were employed for a long time. Two hundred and fifty deeds were copied in this long process, but at length, on June 17, 1890, the company's attorney declared the papers complete and the corporation took possession.

The huge mill was over two years in building. Its total length is over 900 feet. As it was managed at first it was not a profitable investment, and soon foreclosure proceedings were instituted. However, the firm was reorganized as the Great Northern Paper Company, as it is known at the present time. Under the present management the plant has been successful and is one of the leading industries of the Kennebec Valley, furnishing employment to a large number of persons.

While the operations of this company here in Madison have been a great source of prosperity to the people of the town its future gives promise of being far greater in its scope. Operations are in progress for the erection of a new mill only a short distance below the present mill, and a portion of the dam is already constructed. It is hoped that this new industry may not long be delayed.

Other mills of recent date doing much to promote the welfare and prosperity of the community are Weston's saw mill a short distance above the railroad bridge, a mill run by steam, and not far from this is J. H. Dane's sash and blind factory, which is doing a good business.

EAST MADISON INDUSTRIES.

Madison's manufacturing industries are not wholly confined to Madison Village. East Madison has furnished her portion of the manufacturing during all the past century. In fact, long before there was any thought of building any mill of consequence at Madison Bridge there was a well-equipped woolen mill at East Madison, together with fulling and cloth dressing mills, tanneries, saw and grist mills.

So far as we are able to learn Elisha Lincoln, the first settler in this part of the town, was the builder of the first saw and grist mill. It was located on the outlet of Hayden Lake on the site of the present woolen mill, and was built soon after the coming of Mr. Lincoln. Sometime in the 30's the mills were replaced by a new and larger mill with a chair manufactory in one part of it. In 1843 this mill was burned and was replaced by a smaller mill. The cloth dressing and carding mill was burned at the same time. This mill was built sometime in the 20's. It was never rebuilt. The woolen mill was located here in 1855. The powers and privileges were bought and the mill was built in this same year. The concern was known as the Wesserrunsett Woolen Company. It employed about one hundred persons. This mill was doomed to fire in about three years. The year 1858 saw its destruction. In 1870 the present mill was erected and called the Lakeside Woolen Company. It gives employment to about thirty men. It confines its work largely to weaving.

At the "Lower Mills", about one-half mile below the woolen mill, Elisha Lincoln built, in about 1840, what was probably the first saw mill at this point. The grist mill at this place was built by Aaron and Hiram Hobart. The date was not far from 1850. The saw mill was burned and another built in about 1860 or a little earlier, by Daniel and Joel Hobart. to take its place. The mill is owned today by Daniel Hobart.

About 1840 a shingle mill was built a short distance below the village by John Cook. A part of the same mill is standing today, and with the additions that have been made is owned by Willis Hobart. Up near the outlet of the lake, prior to 1860, Issiah Cushing built a saw mill and shingle mill.

Nathaniel Chadbourn built a tannery about 1840 on this same stream, about twenty rods below the present woolen mill. It was torn down about 1890. Another tannery was built on the same site as occupied by the present woolen mill. It was built very early, the date being uncertain.

CHAPTER V.

Toll Bridges.

The Madison Bridge—Dates—Patterson Bridge—Date.

The Norridgewock Falls Toll Bridge was built in 1829, on the authority of the charter granted by the State for the purpose in 1825. The owners were formed into a stock company, and the same corporation continued to hold the property till 1902 when the agitation for a free bridge, after the old Toll Bridge had been destroyed in the freshet of 1901 made it necessary for the two towns of Anson and Madison to build a free bridge. The builder of the toll bridge was Nathan Houghton. The first owners were Benjamin Ellis, Nathan Houghton, Capt. George Gray and Elijah Hilton.

In 1832 the Toll Bridge was carried away in part, the freshet of that year being very severe. It has sustained several severe injuries in other freshets but was not carried out since 1832, till 1901 when the freshet that came on so suddenly in December completely destroyed it.

In the early days when the towns were so situated as to render the building of suitable bridges over the large rivers and streams impossible, the toll bridge, built by private capital, was a great convenience, but when years had rolled by and the municipalities have become more solid, financially, the toll bridge became the object of much dissatisfaction wherever located. This was true of the one at Madison and Anson Lower Village. When the freshet of 1901 destroyed it, a move was immediately made to replace it with a free bridge. It would be expensive of course and there was much controversy over the matter, especially in the town of Anson, but the bridge was built, and is a most excellent piece of workmanship.

We have compiled for this work the following from the town records of Madison:

"Meeting of Town of Madison on January 18, 1902.

"The warrant for this meeting contained the following article: To see if the town will vote to purchase the rights, property and apputenances of the Norridgewock Falls Toll Bridge Company which said Company has voted to sell to the towns of Anson and Madison for the sum of $2,500. To see if the town will vote to and appoint a committee or committees for the purpose of taking all necessary measures toward the building of a bridge between the towns of Madison and Anson on or near the site recently occupied by the Norridgewock Falls Toll Bridge, and to pass any other votes necessary to carry into effect any action taken under this or the preceeding article.

"Met and voted to purchase the property, and to appoint a committee of five as per the above article.

"The following were appointed by the Moderator: C. O Small, A. L. Smith, Jr., W. F. Greene (declined and J. R. Emery appointed in his place) Frank E. Welch and John Chadbourn.

"Town Meeting of Madison held February 8, 1902.

"To see if the town will vote to buy and maintain two-thirds part of a bridge which the proprietors of the Norridgewock Falls Toll Bridge Company are to build across the Kennebec River between the towns of Madison and Anson on or near the site recently occupied by the Norridgewock Falls Toll Bridge upon the following terms, namely: For a sum equal to two-thirds of the cost thereof together with two-thirds of the sum of $2,500 and interest and what other legitimate and necessary charges for interest and other expenses that shall have been incured and contracted by said proprietors in building and maintaining of said bridge to the date that such purchase shall be made and the bridge together with its other rights, property and appurtenances shall be transfered and conveyed to the town.

"Voted to purchase the bridge as per the preceeding article.

"A committee of three was appointed to obtain the necessary legislation to carry the above into effect. The following was the committee: C. A. Wilbur, C. O. Small, and A. L. Smith, Jr."

In due time there arose a fine steel bridge near the site of the former bridge, which is all that anyone could desire. Its strength, and fine proportions stand out in contrast with the qualities of its predecessor. In this connection one is reminded of the sad accident which occurred many years ago on the old toll bridge. Mr. Benjamin Baxter relates to us the account of the accident substantially as follows: "In the days before the railroad had reached this portion of the valley all the goods and provisions used in the section to the north of us was hauled with teams along the Kennebec from the larger towns 'down river'. A great part of the travel went over the toll bridge at this point. One day a four horse team heavily loaded started across the bridge, in spite of the advice given not to attempt the crossing with so heavy a load. All went well till the middle pier was nearly reached when a crash was heard and the wagon went quickly to the raging torrent below, carrying with it the driver himself and the two pole horses. The leaders succeeded in breaking away, and were stopped on the Anson side by Mr. Baxter who witnessed the accident. The man was instantly killed as well as the horses which went with him. However a large amount of the goods floated and were collected below the village."

The Patterson Bridge was built in 1839, and was owned by a stock company. It is located in the northwestern part of Madison, across the Kennebec River nearly opposite the village of North Anson. An incident related to the writer by Peter Savage gives something of interest concerning this bridge. The old time "muster" was having its day in the period when the Patterson Toll Bridge was erected. It happened that when a muster was held at North Anson on a certain day the toll bridge was nearing completion. The man who run the ferry which was in use at this point previous to the toll bridge made a deal whereby the bridge should be held back in its progress toward completion so that those who attended the muster from the east side of the river would be compelled to patronize the ferry. These parties learning of the deal, concluded to go them one better and immediately caught up some of the planking which lay on the shore ready for use and constructed in a short time a flooring sufficient to get across the river, thereby beating the ferry at their own game, and making the Patterson Toll Bridge for one day at least, a free bridge.

CHAPTER VI.

Educational History.

Early Schools—Recent Development and Advancement.

Education is said to be the bulwark of free institutions. However true this may be, certain it is that the people of New England have ever so regarded the problem of social and political life. There were some few things that the early settler found necessary, such as the saw mill and the grist mill. These he must have to enable him to provide food and shelter. But the next move after securing his mills was to provide schools and opportunities for religious training.

These schools were of necessity very crude at first. In the early days school houses were not provided. The settlers were each expected to provide a certain room in his house for school accommodations. The wages paid were very small as compared with the wages of today. Female teachers got not far from 75 cents a week; male teachers received from $12 to $15 a month and were expected to "board round" at that. The schools were changed to a great extent after the separation from Massachusetts, in 1820. New courses were introduced, new text books were put in use and better equipments were provided in almost all quarters.

With the kind assistance of Prof. T. A. Roberts and others we have attempted in the following to give something concerning the schools of Madison.

Mr. Joshua B. Perkins is authority for the statement that the first school house in Madison was on Weston avenue near what is now known as the Blake place. This was a one-story, flat-roof building, about 30 feet square. One of the first teachers in this house was Hon O. L. Currier of New Sharon. Mr. Currier married Miss Mary Ann Weston, a daughter of Stephen Weston. Miss Jewett was another early teacher in this building. Miss Jewett was the mother of B. P. J. Weston. This school house was built not far from 1804 to 1810.

It is stated that the Westons and Pipers controlled the school house question for sometime. When more votes came in it was decided to change the location of the building. The new site selected was on Old Point avenue not far from Mr. Renier's store. One winter the building caught fire and the roof was burned off. Boards were secured, the roof replaced, and school was continued in a few days. This school house was moved in about 1816. It remained here a few years until Nathan Houghton gave a lease of a lot of land in "The Holler". On this lot the "Old Red School House" was built. The lease was drawn up by Hon. Anson P. Morrill, afterward governor of the State of Maine, but at that time a merchant at East Madison, then the business center of Madison. The usual attendance in the old school house on Weston avenue was not far from 25 to 30. Mr. Perkins has kindly given some of the names of those who were students there. Adeline Jones, Rosanna Houghton, Lucy Piper, John Jones, T. H. Weston, J. B. Perkins, Marcia Weston, Bridget Weston, Sarah Weston, Fannie Weston, Cyrus Weston, Enoch Weston, Rufus Weston, Chester Houghton, Joseph Withee, Calvin Withee, David Withee and Parker Withee. The "Old Red School House" was situated below the Congregational parsonage. One teacher in this house was Miss May Osborne of Skowhegan. Other teachers in this school house were Miss Bixby, Miss Rideout, Miss Longley, Asa Dickinson and Mr. Nash. It should be stated that Mr. Gard Whittier taught a private school one or more winters at this village. Mr. Darius Houghton attended school there in 1842, which was soon after it was built. In 1879 the house became inadequate to accomodate the needs of the district and a school was started in Lincoln Hall, where the larger students attended, while the smaller pupils were provided for at the "Red School House". This condition continued for about three years when a school house was built on the corner of Pleasant street and Old Point avenue. The builder was Henry Abbey. The first teacher when the school was established at Lincoln Hall was W. W. Mayo, a graduate of Colby College. B. A. Pease, also a graduate of this same college, was the successor of Mr. Mayo. C. A. Wilber followed Mr. Pease in 1880 and taught four years, part of the time in Lincoln Hall and part of the time in the Pleasant street school house. Mr. Wilber's successor was M. C. Dow. C. O. Small taught from 1884 till 1888, and has served several years as Supervisor and Superintendent of Schools. Mr. Wilber has also filled like positions. Both of these men have had a large share in building up the school interests of the town of Madison.

At this point we give the names of the other teachers who have had charge of the High School in its different stages since the beginning in Lincoln Hall: E. L. Pennell, 1891; C. D. Boothby, 1891; E. L. Pennell, 1891; L. P. Sturtevant, 1892; C. H. Sturtevant, 1893; F. W. Larrabee, 1894; N. T. Abbott, 1895; Fred L. Tapley, 1896; E. M. Tucker, 1898; T. A. Roberts, 1899.

The assistants since 1891 have been the following: Minnie F. Waugh, 1891; Bessie M. Getchell, 1894; H. Kate Butler, 1895; Alice Robbins and Bertha M. Files, 1898; Edith L. Floyd, 1899; P. E. Graffam, and Charlotte Towne-Roberts, 1901.

With the incoming of the business prosperity which Madison has had within the last few years, the improvement and enlargement of the school buildings became imperative. The Pleasant Street School building was built in 1882. This project of providing larger and better accommodations for the schools provoked a long and animated discussion. It seems strange that people will condemn enterprises which in a short time they will indorse, simply because a little money is required to carry it through. But such cases are the rule more times than the exception. The argument against this building was that it was too large for the needs. Several meetings were held before the matter was settled. The land, one-half an acre in extent, was purchased of Zebina Dinsmore, the price for the lot being $100. A few years later an addition was made which, together with the original cost, amounted to about $2,500.

The other school buildings in the village have cost approximately the following: The Main Street School house, $13,500; the Weston Avenue School house, $12,000.

The school districts numbered twenty for the entire town in 1892. Today there are only eight of the rural schools, which in all contain about 100 pupils, while the village schools have not far from 375.

The course of studies for the schools, gotten out by Superintendent C. O. Small in 1893, was of great assistance in securing a more perfect grading. In 1903 this course was revised by Superintendent Thomas A. Roberts to conform to the new and changed conditions. Madison's schools are equal to those of any town of its size in Maine, and the inhabitants take just pride in them. Madison has never tried to economize at the expense of her schools. Both village and rural schools are carefully graded, the latter even to the extent that regular promotions are made so that there is no loss of time and energy in the unnecessary repetitions of certain studies. The text books are the latest and thoroughly up-to-date. Music was introduced by Superintendent Roberts at the beginning of the summer term, 1902, and Mrs. Frank Dinsmore, a former teacher under C. O. Small, Esq., was engaged as the regular instructor. On Mrs. Dinsmore's resignation, in 1903, Prof. Elmer E. Towne became the teacher of music. Most excellent results have been obtained, which will be more appreciated when the pupils shall have reached maturity.

THE HIGH SCHOOL.

The most excellent record made by the Madison High School deserves special mention. We quote the exact words of one who is thoroughly conversant with the conditions: "The growth of the high school has been steady. During the past five years the growth has been more marked. The average attendance for the year 1898-9 was thirty-three. For this present fall term, 1903, the attendance is ninety. The school now numbers nearly forty boys. Additions have been made to the High School curriculum until now it fits for our best colleges. Representatives can be found in Colby, Bates, University of Maine, and Boston University. During the past four years thirty-eight students have been graduated, and the graduating class numbers fifteen this year. The first class was graduated March 15, 1889, and following are the members: Ploma M. Hilton, Gusta H. Tinkham, S. Eugene Remick and Nathan A. Weston.

"In 1902 the Physical and Chemical Laboratory room was fitted up with the latest equipments in the line of tables, sinks and other appliances, so that the work in sciences can now be much more satisfactorily carried on."

In looking forward we can see nothing but the brightest prospects for the schools of Madison.

CHAPTER VII.

Merchants and Professional Men.

Early Merchants—Stores—Lawyers—Doctors.

Madison had the usual country stores in her early history. These were general in their nature, and their stock was housed in private houses and later in public places, but it was left for the coming of the mills to bring to Madison her stores with their special lines, of dry goods, clothing, groceries, and hardware placed in fine blocks.

In searching the records in this direction we learn that the first merchant in Madison was Zebina Houghton, son of Nathan Houghton, who was builder of the first Toll Bridge. Zebina was a shoe maker. He had his store on the Island, and was toll-gatherer when the bridge was first built.

The others were not numerous but we learn that the following were in trade here, and they came in very near the following order: Benjamin Spaulding, John Whorff, Washington Rowell and Calvin Fletcher who later went west. These in their order occupied the Red Store which afterwards became Lincoln Hall.

The snow store so called, which was situated on the Island, was built by Heald, Spaulding, & Viles. It was later occupied by William Snow and by Bradbury Dinsmore. Daniel Maxin & Son also carried on a general stores trade in this store. Some time after Mr. Maxim had closed out his business, D. W. Simonds traded here.

PROFESSIONAL MEN.

The towns of Madison and Anson have been well provided for the last twenty years with legal talent, but prior to that time there was only one lawyer who located in this vicinity. This was one William Haskell who located on the Anson side and lived in the house where F. D. Gilman now lives. Others who have been in practice in Madison are the following: Johnson & Johnson, Charles A. Wilber, who came here as a teacher from New Portland, Charles O. Small who also came here as a teacher, and as did Mr. Wilber, served the town successfully as Superintendent of Schools, Bernard Gibbs and J. W. Foster. B. S. Collins and Augustine Simmons, both of North Anson, have had branch offices here within the last few years. In this connection it is well to note that J. F. Withee was the first Trial Justice in the town of Madison. He received his commission in 1890 and has been in office since that date. Other justices are W. W. Johnson and George F. Newell on the Anson side.

The first physican to locate in the town of Madison was Dr. Sumner Gould. The town was served by other physicians prior to his arrival but they were from other towns. The successors of Dr. Gould have been the following: Dr. C. D. Morrill, Dr. Kent, Dr. D. S.

Hunnewell, Dr. W. G. Sawyer, Dr. J. L. Pepper, Dr. W. S. Milliken, Dr. H. B. Esmond, Dr. W. H. Kennison.

The following have been dentists here: F. A. Leavitt, Thomas M. Bennett, B. F. Lancaster, and J. P. Lancaster.

CHAPTER VIII.

Church History.

Baptists—Congregationalists—Free Baptists—Methodists—Universalists—Catholics.

The ecclesiastical history of the towns of Madison and Anson Lower Village is principally a history of the different denominations. We have endeavored to collect information which will reveal the main facts of interest in the past of these different societies.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

The Baptist Church of Anson was organized January 25, 1820. Its first pastor was Francis Powers, who was here in 1831. It was during his pastorate that the first church edifice was erected. The date was 1859 and the cost was $1,000. The next pastor was Rev. Charles Miller, who came in 1869. The next pastor was Rev. E. Nugent, 1879. His successors have been as follows: Rev. B. F. Turner, 1896; Rev. J. P. Longley, 1897; Rev. E. E. Morse, 1903. The second church, located on Spear Hill on the Anson side of the river, was built in 1898, at a cost of $2,800.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

The Congregational Church was organized at Blackwell Hill on April 26, 1826. It had eleven members, consisting of four men and seven women. Two men and two women came by letter from North Anson, and the others were admitted on their own profession of faith in Christ. The Council to organize the church consisted of the following: Rev. Josiah Peet of Norridgewock; Rev. Fifield Holt of Bloomfield; and Rev. George W. Fargo of Solon. Rev. Josiah Tucker, the first ordained minister of this denomination to settle in Madison, was ordained on May 9, 1826. The council was held in a large barn, there being no other place of sufficient size available. Mr. Tucker seems to have been an energetic man, as he succeeded in erecting a church, which was dedicated in December, 1827. This edifice was located on Blackwell Hill. Services were continued here for several years. On January 1, 1845, the meeting house erected by this society at "The Bridge" was dedicated. This edifice formerly occupied the site of the present millinery store of Miss Blanche L. Seavey. It has been remodelled and moved to Maple street and is now known as the Wood Block. It contains the printing plant of E. A. Merriman, where the Madison Bulletin is published. On June 10, 1893, the magnificent new church on the corner of Main street and Weston avenue was dedicated. This church is a fine structure of brick, and is one of the ornaments to the town. The present pastor is Rev. C. D. Boothby.

FREE WILL BAPTIST CHURCH.

The second Free Baptist Church of Madison was organized December 12, 1840, at the house of Ira Searles, Madison. The first Free Will Baptist Society being the one on Blackwell Hill. It is not now in existence, having sold its property and dissolved several years ago. Some of the early pastors of this church were: Hosea Washburn, Elders Williamson, Turner, Stilson, Mark Merrill and Ira Emery.

In 1860 this society, with the assistance of the Methodists, built a meeting house on the Anson side of the river where worship was held till 1883. At this time the Methodists withdrew and built a church of their own on the Madison side. Two years later the Free Baptists built a church on the Madison side and dedicated it June 12, 1886, free from debt. The total cost of church and equipment was $3000. With the kind assistance of the present pastor, Miss Mabel C. Andrews, we have compiled the following list of pastors from 1868. Rev. Otis Andrews was pastor about 1868. Rev. J. P. Longley followed him in about 1875. His successors were Revs. Truman Maxim, G. W. Colby and C. E. Blake. The pastors of this church since its establishment in Madison have been as follows: Rev. F. E. Freeze, August 6, 1884 to July 22, 1885; Rev. J. L. Munroe, August 28, 1886 to April, 1887; Rev. J. A. Wiggin, July 24, 1887 to January 19, 1890; Rev. C. G. Mosher, January 26, 1890 to May 1, 1893; Rev. L. B. Twitchell, September 20, 1893 to December 30, 1894; Rev. Berton Minard, May 12, 1895 to September 15, 1895; Rev. W. W. Hayden, November 3, 1895 to October 7, 1900; Rev. Mabel C. Andrews, January 10, 1901.

METHODIST CHURCH.

The records of Methodism in Madison and Anson Lower Village in its early days are nearly obliterated. Some facts are however preserved and we have attempted to give them. The first record is of the existence of a class meeting on the Anson side held at the house of Thomas Heald. The date is uncertain, but not far from 1835. About 1834, according to rumor, John Perrin preached here. Nearly all is a blank until 1851 when meetings were held at the church which stood at the corner of Main and Maple streets, the Union House in which the Methodists held enough pews to secure the use of the church a fourth of the time. The Congregationalists occupied it the remainder of the time, having a resident pastor. M. D. Welcome was pastor about this time. Not far from this time James Farrington of Wilton preached here, and it was during his pastorate that the division of church property occurred. The Methodists then removed their place of worship to the Anson side. Here they worshiped in a church in Union with the Free Baptists. This continued from 1854 to December, 1883 when the new church was dedicated. During this time occasional services were held by the Methodists at Blackwell Hill. Meetings mere held also at Whorff's Corner. The preachers serving during this period were the following: J. R. Bailey, James Farrington, Isaac Lord, True Whittier. Joseph Mooar, A. H. Reed, P. E. Brown, C. K. Evans, A. W. Waterhouse, C. E. Bisbee, James Nixon, and G. E. Clark.

In 1877-8 True Whittier was pastor; 1879-80, G. D. Holmes. In 1882 D. B. Holt came to this charge, and under his pastorate the new church on the corner of Main and Madison street. The church alluded to above was burned, March 11, 1900. It was rebuilt on the same site and dedicated, December 13 1900. The pastors from the close of Mr. Holt's pastorate were as follows: J. W. Buffam 1885; Abel E. Parlin 1886; W. B. Eldridge 1889; Robert Lawton 1890; C. A. Ratcliffe 1892; J. L. Hoyle 1894; F. C. Norcross 1894; S. E. Leech 1899; H. L. Nichols 1903.

UNIVERSALIST CHURCH.

The first Universalist parish of Madison, Maine, was organized in Union Hall in the town of Madison on the sixth day of January, A. D. 1892.

The first pastor was Rev. Donald Frazer, who continued as such until January, 1894. The second pastor was Rev. George E. Leighton. The third and present pastor is Rev. J. Frank Rhoades. Rev. W. W. Hooper supplied in the absence of a settled pastor.

At the time Mr. Rhoades took up the work here the society was worshiping in Union Hall. He saw at once that a church was not only necessary but possible, so he set out with characteristic energy to supply the long felt need. The result of Mr. Rhoades' effort may be seen from the following: "The parish now owns a nice large lot on the east side of Weston avenue in Madison Village and has a nice chapel nearly completed on the same."

CATHOLIC CHURCH.

It may be said that the Catholic church at Madison was first organized at the time of Father Rasle and his famous chapel at Old Point. From that time there seems to be no record either as a church or a mission, until within the last twenty years, when the Rev. Father La Croix of Skowhegan had charge of Madison as a mission. About two years ago Rev. Father Kealey of Belfast was appointed pastor of the church at Madison. On his arrival here he found about seventy families with no place of worship. He immediately began plans to supply the needs of his people with a church, and has under construction a church, located on Folsom street, which will cost about $6000.

CHAPTER IX.

Societies and Institutions.

Particulars of Organization—Date—First Officers—Present Officers.

MADISON BANK.

For some time the town of Madison had been in need of a banking institution to accommodate the business men of the community. In response to this need the First National Bank of Madison was organized in 1891, with Oma Clark as president and M. A. Hewett as cashier. The capital was $75,000.

This bank is a well-managed institution and has the full confidence of the business world.

The present officers are Charles H. Clark, president; Charles A. Wilber, vice-president; K. C. Gray, cashier; directors, Charles H. Clark, Charles A. Wilber, George E. Macomber, Hiram Moore, F. E. Smith. J. P. Clark, K. C. Gray.

Its surplus and capital stock is now $90,000.

MADISON LOAN AND BUILDING ASSOCIATION.

The present officers are as follows: C. A. Wilber, president; K. C. Gray, secretary and treasurer; directors, E. C. Town, Robert Ballantyne, G. D. Perkins, D. L. Churchill, Thomas Bedford.

LIABILITIES.

The number of shareholders, 51; borrowers, 15; shares outstanding, 299; shares pledged for loans, 83; loans, 17.

CHAPTER X.

Town Officers.

Selectmen—Clerks—Treasurers.

It was hoped when this work was undertaken that the town officers of this town could be obtained from the first, but we have been dissapointed in this. The town books are destroyed, and the records of the town elections are kept in the Secretary of State's office only two years' time. We however have compiled a list from 1870 to 1903.
